

Random Thoughts Of James Krauss –

Can't Sleep, Just Thinking

July 18, 2016

From time to time I get these random thoughts that are caused by something that I see or something that is happening around me. This article is one of these thoughts.

Well, just like the title says, I just can't sleep right now so what do you do when you can't sleep? That's right, you think. There is so much killing in this world, Iraq, Afghanistan, The Sedan, Turkey, just to name a few. There is killing in this country, Blacks killing Cops, Cops killing Blacks. You have people preaching peace but you can't hear them over those who are preaching hate and killing. They are preaching hate against blacks, Hispanics, immigrants from the near east, afraid that they are coming into this country to destroy it. And then to top it off we have the Republican Presidential convention.

Over the last few years when Trump said he was running for president we all thought it was a joke. Then people started to get behind him thinking that they were now in on the inside of the joke. He seems to be making the statement "Make America First Again." First in what???

Now, next week you have the Democrats with their Convention. I honestly can say that I would not mind a woman president, but not Hillary Clinton! Her husband did a good job while in the White House, but there were lots of time I would just loved to slap him. And I am not a violent man. Now, I cannot trust any politician any farther than I can through the White House, But Hillary just seems more dishonest than most politicians.

So, Here I am, a man almost 65 years old. The Bible says that man is not promised any more than three score and ten. That is 70 years for those you who don't want to do that math. Well that is about five more years for me. I have had many friends that have not made that, and yet many more that have gone past that number. Now I hope that I can go well past that number, although some days I really doubt it.

I have been thinking about my little granddaughter, and what will be happening with her. This little girl will be 7 years old soon; she has nothing but love in her heart. We have tried to surround her with nothing but love her whole short life. She has autism and works so very hard to overcome the road blocks put in front of her. Her mother and father work so very hard to not only help her, but others like her. I worry so much about her and what will happen to her, especially if and when the HATE Mongers get into power. I see a little of it here and there now, but they are pockets of hate. People work on that. What will happen if this nation is a nation of hate of anyone different?

Maybe this is one of the reason I can't sleep too well. I just don't see any answers right now. How about you stay up with me and think about this also. Maybe someone will come up with an answer.

Until next time

Jim
